

This week at West Berks

How the Gillas is set for a grand finale and the rest of the week's results

Gillas set up for a great final

Chris Ramsey followed up his win in Round 1 of the Gillas Cup a couple of weeks back by winning Round 2 on Sunday. His score of 40 points was just enough to beat Kevin Hopwood on count-back to take first place while Tim Palmer with 38 points beat Darren Boulton, also on count-back, to take third spot. This result sets up a very close and open final to be played next Sunday, the last major competition to be decided this year.

Normally a three qualifying round competition, this year the Gillas Cup is curtailed to just two to accommodate rescheduling of the Crawford Cup due to bad weather.

This means that competitors will take just one score, the best of Rounds 1 and 2 into the final. Chris Ramsey and Mark Ridgill will lead the way with the 43 points they scored in Round 1, closely followed by Kevin Hopwood on 40 points and Chris Hunt on 39. The danger to the leaders doesn't end there however as Patrick Wilmore, Mark Ramos, Darren Boulton and Tim Palmer pursue closely on 38 while there are no less than 18 players within seven points of the lead. Whoever wins will have to play well!

Jane takes Armstrong Salver

Jane Brackenbury retained the Armstrong Salver ladies' match play competition when she beat Gale McAuley in the final. Jane was presented with the trophy at the Ladies' AGM held on Saturday. This was the last major ladies' competition of the year and a summary of the year's results can be found on page 2.

Renee races to victory

Renee Wheeler won the ladies' winter trophy stableford played on Tuesday November 6 with 35 points. Gale

McAuley scored 31 points to finish second beating Georgie Seaman on count-back.

Busy day for Jane

As well as picking up the Armstrong Salver at the AGM Jane Brackenbury won Round 3 of the ladies' Winter League on Saturday with 33 points.

Sian Soanes was second with 30 points and Renee Wheeler third on 28.

No lady captain but business as usual

THE Ladies' AGM was held on Saturday and although there is no new lady captain appointed this year retiring captain. Sandy Miller assures TTNB that it is very much business as usual and she is confident there will be a captain in place for 2020. During 2019, the committee and other volunteers from the ladies' section will manage all activities throughout the year.
